Safeguarding Your Patients Through The Practice of Your Access Policy

IntelliCentrics is the world's leading provider of credentialing services for the healthcare sector. We have helped more than 6,000 facilities in the US control the entry of commercial visitors to their premises using Reprax and are now bringing our pioneering system to Canada.

Credentialing helps facilities to monitor and control the access of commercial visitors and set the specific requirements for entry to different areas. Each hospital establishes its own conditions of entry (i.e. credentials) for each area, which can be tailored and amended as required.

In practice, this means all regular commercial visitors to a facility must be pre-registered and meet the criteria set by the hospital. For example, you can determine whether you require individuals to have certain immunizations, training certifications, be in compliance with your policies, etc. before they are granted access to your facility.

We're Here to Help

Credentialing offers multiple benefits for forward-thinking facilities. It can help reduce the risk of disease, assist with health and safety quality standards and establish access control to wards, departments and clinicians by controlling where commercial visitors are going and who they are seeing.

The Reprax system is a commercial visitor-paid model, which means there is no cost to the hospital. Each commercial visitor pays a nominal annual fee to register and authorize IntelliCentrics to check the individual's credentials. The hospital then simply logs on to the website or mobile app to check the status of each visitor at point of entry and issues any required identification.

A Complete Solution

The IntelliCentrics team works hand in hand with hospitals to create a custom solution. This includes working closely with hospital employees and medical staff to inform and educate them about the system and its benefits.

We also create customized communications programmes to inform your commercial visitors about credentialing and manage their queries and requests. At roll out, we are on the ground with you to get the system up and running smoothly and effectively, and you'll benefit from a dedicated customer service team, providing on-going support.

And we continue to support you every step of the way to help you maximize the benefits credentialing can deliver.
